Hi Chaz

I wanted to say what a fan I am of your boutique gathering in NYC later this month. I hope COVID-19 doesn't dampen spirits. Sadly, I won't be able to attend, because I live in Australia, and we're not allowed to leave the country these days. I wish I could witness your gathering there. It sounds very hot and right up my circumsexual alley.

I have always been fascinated by circumcision since I was about 5 years old. I was left intact as so many of my contemporaries were in 1979, because my mother didn't believe in RIC. I don't blame her and I actually respect her more for it. RIC is practically unheard of in Australia since about 1980. Fortunately, I was able to choose to be circumcised at the age of 30 and fully participate in the act knowingly. I'm 40 at the moment. These 10 years have flown by so quickly and I still remember my surgery as if it were yesterday. I had a freehand circumcision with lidocaine cream and local anaesthetic skin injections on my frenulum only. The physician did not believe in penile blocks, nor did I want a general anaesthetic. I was sceptical and a little nervous at that point. He placed the lidocaine cream around my foreskin and wrapped my cock in Saran and told me to walk down the street and hang out in the stores for 30 minutes, while it was absorbed. I went back and lay down on the table. He was a fan of a low and tight result, which suited me fine, although to be honest, I wish I had insisted on a high and tight result. He said a high and tight is hard to achieve freehand with an even scar and needed a clamp, which he didn't have. Clamps, especially adult clamps, are virtually unheard of on our shores. Surgeons see them as an insult to their skill and expertise. The most vivid memory I have from my circumcision, was that the physician removed his buttoned-up shirt before scrubbing and gowning. There was a female nurse in the room and she didn't act like this was unusual. I guess he did that every time he scrubbed to keep his shirt clean. I was hugely turned on. He had a dad-bod and the thought of him cutting my cock shirtless under his sterile gown, had my mind racing. Sadly, he is straight. Although I think he's a circumsexual too. After about 30 minutes, I got up and walked out of there. I was really happy with the result. I am naturally darker pigmented, especially my cock, so I have a really defined two-tone effect between what little there is left of my mucosa and my shaft skin.

I've never looked back and I'm happy I got to make a conscious decision about getting rid of my foreskin. I don't dislike foreskins and many of my boyfriends have had foreskins, but for me personally, I prefer my cut dick on me.

Needless to say, I'm not sure what you guys get up to at your gathering, but I'm hoping you have lots of simulated/real circumcisions. I'd get a boner just watching and talking about it. I have a collection of circ paraphernalia and even playing with a Gomco makes me bust a nut. I'm fortunate enough to be a health professional that works in the OR, so it's my occupational privilege to help perform circumcisions from time to time on adults. My colleagues have no idea that under my scrubs I'm rock hard and dripping pre-cum. It's my dirty little secret. Anyway, I wish you guys all the best for the evening and will be imaging I'm there on the 27th. Here are a few photos of my collection. I especially like the mint condition Plastibell.
